

COMPLETE DIETICIANS & NUTRITION COUNSELORS – 40,147

This brand new compilation reaches Dietitians and Nutrition Counselors. The professionals plan food and nutrition programs, and supervise the preparation and serving of meals for their clients. They help prevent and treat illnesses by promoting healthy eating habits, scientifically evaluating clients' diets and suggesting modifications. They need at least a bachelor's degree in dietetics, foods and nutrition, food service systems management, or a related area. Dietitians are often involved in identifying and treating health ailments. Therefore, knowledge of prevention at every stage of growth and development and a background in metabolism and biochemistry of nutrients and food components are critical.

Employment of dietitians is expected to grow about as fast as the average for all occupations through the year 2008 due to increased emphasis on disease prevention, a growing and aging population, and public interest in nutrition. They are excellent prospects for continuing education, seminars, journals and other professional publications as well as vacations, and much more.
